WAGON MINES MAY BE ABLE TO RUN AT FULL CAPACITY

Would Be Able to Take Care of the Domestic Fuel Problem

TRADE WOULD BE PROFITABLE

The present coal strike will give the wagon mines an opportunity to resume operations to the full extent of their capacity, if they wish to go ahead and produce coal. In a majority of instances these mines are not organized, as they employ but a few men, but their output will be of considerable proportion if they continue operation while the larger mines are down.

These mines have been doing but little business for the past year. After the signing of the armistice, on the 11th of November last year, profitable contracts held by these mines were at once suspended. and as they could not compete [illegible] with the larger mines, they were compelled to close down. During all these months of idleness the owners have had to do more or less work in taking care of the properties, until this fall, when conditions again allowed them to resume operations

Being without rail connections consequently they are compelled to depend on wagon and truck transportation for getting their product to market. Now that the general strike is on they will have a further opportunity to again produce to their capacity, and more than likely the domestic trade will take their full output. This trade requires several thousand bushels of coal every month, and would be very profitable at least during the winter months. There are many of these mines in this vicinity, particularly our Maple creek, while there are a large number of similar workings in the upper part of the valley. While these mines may have no appreciable effect on the industrial situation they will at least provide enough fuel for domestic consumers, which would prevent any distress from lack of coal in this section of the valley.

Paul Matthews, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Matthews, former residents of Charleroi, who removed to Youngstown, Ohio, about five years ago, was killed in that city Saturday last when he was struck by an auto truck. Mr. Matthews, the father, was a former employe of the Pittsburg Plate Glass and of the Pittsburg Steel company and the family was well known in Charleroi.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF AMERICAN LEGION

The regular monthly meeting of Charleroi Post No. 22, American Legion, will be held Tuesday evening, November 4, at 8 o'clock, and every member is requested to come out and bring a new member with him. Business of importance in relation to the National Convention which meets in Minneapolis November 10. 11 and 12, is to be transacted.

A great victory for the American Legion has been won by the passage in Congress of the Wolcott-Johnson bill, to which President Wilson affixed his signature, officially incorporating the national organization of the American veterans of the great war. No other association of this kind has ever been thus honored by Congress in the history of the United States.

In addition to the advantages derived from carrying on the national business of the American Legion the act of incorporation gives the youngest veterans' association official standing in the nation. Incorporation over the signature of the President means that the American Legion has arrived; that it has been accepted by Congress as a potent factor in the national life of America.

The Legion is removed irrevocably from party politics by that section of the bill which provides "that the organization shall be non-political and as an organization shall not promote the candidacy of any person seeking public office."

Says Class Domination Must Always Be Feared

Sunday evening in the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church, Rev. John R. Burson preached a sermon that received much favorable comment. In speaking of the industrial unrest, Rev. Burson said, that the recent conference in Washington City failed because both capital and labor went into the meeting with reservations, with certain principles from which they would not recede. The public must not take sides either with capital or labor as such, but the public has a right to demand that both classes shall use such policies as are not detrimental to the general public welfare. The public will ever be interested in progress in industry, in improved methods of production and an increasing of output of all things that minister to the comfort and happiness of the people. There are four groups to be reconciled: In the capitalistic group are Judge Gary a conservative and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., a progressive. In the labor group are Mr Gompers a conservative and Mr. Foster of more radical type. Policemen and firemen must not align themselves with any class group. Class domination, whether of capital or labor must ever be feared. In closing, the speaker paid a fine tribute to the world workers and said, all should desire that in the end justice and right should prevail.

All of these promotions took effect on Friday. He was married on Friday. His resignation with the Pennsylvania took effect on Friday, October 31, 1919. He received word on Friday that he had been given his new position.

DYNAMITE OFFICE AT FAYETTE CITY

About 3 o'clock last Friday morning two sticks of dynamite placed on the top of the safe of the office of the Fayette Feed and Flour company by persons believed to have attempted robbery, destroyed the safe and office, hurling broken timbers almost to the P. & L. E. tracks a distance of one hundred feet away. The dynamiters secured an entrance by jimmying a window and had evidently placed a heavy bag of oyster shell chicken feed on top of the dynamite and then discharged the explosion by means of a battery. The contents of the safe was composed only of papers and files of the company of no value to any one else. The window of the shoe store of Max Safier on Main street was also smashed in and seven pairs of shoes stolen therefrom. It is the belief of the police that the same men made the robbery.

HEAVY FINES IMPOSED ON THREE DEFENDANTS

Before Justice Whitehead on Saturday night, the young men charged with assault and battery and disorderly conduct, following the Charleroi-Uniontown high school football game, were given a hearing. James Wagner, charged with assault and battery, was discharged. there being no evidence against him. Okey Wagner was fined $10 and costs on the charge of disorderly conduct, while Lee Claybaugh and James Mitchell were each fined $25 and costs.

Local football is apt to be a minus quantity for the remainder of the season in Charleroi.

COAL SHIPMENTS SHOW AN INCREASE OVER SEPTEMBER

ENGINEER PARTY WENT TO LOCK SEVEN

Col. O'Donnell, in charge of a United States engineering party ,went through Lock 4 last week on a gasoline launch on the way to Lock No. 7, from where they will begin operations looking toward a government survey to the state line. It is possible they will also make a location for a new lock at No. 7, now so badly needed by the increasing coal trade in the upper valley.

EXPECTS THE USUAL REPUBLICAN VOTE

Much interest is manifested as to whom the Democrats will elect as County Commissioner and the fight between A. P. Barnum, present incumbent, and W. H. Ecker one of the old wheel-horses of the Democratic party in the county is about the only one that is causing any particular stir. Chairman Lewis of the Republican county committee, expects the Republican ticket to win by the usual off-year majorities. while the Democrats will have a scrap among themselves as to who shall be minority commissioner. The contest for Orphans' Court Judge is also one which is being watched with great interest, and the contest promises to be close.

ANOTHER HOUSE BOMBED IN DONORA

The home of Joseph Foytek at 14th street, Donora, was damaged by a dynamite explosion Saturday night, and considerable damage done to the house. No one was injured. It is the opinion of the police that a dynamite charge had been thrown at the house, and that the building did not get the full force of the explosion The windows of the front of the house were broken, and the front door was broken down. Foytek is a monthly man at the Donora mills, and it is believed that it was the intention of those exploding the dynamite to do harm to him. No arrests were made.

Heavy Tonnage Is Shipped During Past Three Months

AWAY AHEAD OF LOCK NO. 1

The coal strike now on, which was threatened all through October had an effect of stimulating production in the upper pool mines and the result is reflected in the report made by the superintendent of Lock No. Four. During the month there was an increase in shipments of 2,266,000 bushels over September, certainly a very good showing. and one that indicates that producers were endeavoring to prepare for the strike which had been advertised several weeks ahead. The total shipment for the month was 33,489,000 bushels, all of which was readily absorbed by the big industries of the Pittsburg district.

A remarkable feature about the coal shipments through Lock Four for the past three months, is the fact that they exceed the entire amount shipped through Lock No. 1 at Pittsburg for the entire year of 1918. During August. September and October a total of 99,874,000 bushels of coal were shipped through the local lock. being divided as follows: August 35,259,000. September 31,126,000, and October 33,489,000 bushels. For the year 1918 the total amount of coal shipped through Lock No. 1 was 98,826,000 bushels. thus showing that Lock 4 had an excess over Lock 1 of 1,048,000 bushels. Much of the coal was run in stock for emergency uses that will be required during the strike.

The traffic report of October as given by Lockmaster James A. Sweeeney is as follows: Going down—Lockings 573, steamers 338, boats and barger 1771, rafts 2. bushels coal 32,489,000, other products. 10 tons, timber 19,000 cubic feet. lumber 10,000 board measure, merchandise 165 tons. passengers 12.

Going up—Lockings 553. steamers 331, boats and barges and barges 1692, rafts 4. other craft 18, bushels coal 15,000. sand 46,000 bushels. gravel 79,000 bushels. timber 6,000 cubic feet lumber 39,000 board measure, merchandise 255 tons, passengers 25.

The Midland of the Crucible Coal company, which was sunk early last summer, has been entirely rebuilt and entered in the trade again, along with the Atha and Crucible.

The new all-steel steamer Homestead, a companion boat to the W. N. Clingerman, and owned by the Carnegie Steel company, made a trial trip last week and proved to be a success. This boat will likely be entered in the local trade during the month.

UNFULFILLED PROMISE

The distance between promises and the performances of A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney general of the United States, in the simple matter of reducing the cost of living is immeasurable.

In the very important matter of reducing the cost of living Mr. Palmer, probably the keenest politician in the administration at Washington, readily recognized the political significance of the general discontent and started his campaign in the newspapers by threatening certain organizations not in harmony with his political notions.

Mr. Palmer without blinking an eye and of course with reckless disregards of the solemn truth, assured the people of Philadelphia that throughout the United States the price of food has fallen 25 per cent since he opened his newspaper campaign for political notoriety.

And the strangest feature of the misrepresentation is that Mr. Palmer tickles himself with the confidence that the people are disposed to take every political utterance of his as gospel truth. He actually puts a low estimate on public intelligence.

SHOWING UP WILHELM.

If the German people is really bent upon rehabilitating itself in the eyes of the world. it will show no resentment against the disclosures that are now forthcoming concerning William Hohenzollern the man as well as the monarch. Capt. Persius has drawn a picture of the ex-Kaiser so detailed in feature, time and place as to convince. The All-Highest is revealed in his personal relationships as a clown and a boor in his moments of hilarity. and with a habit of malicious mischief in his more irritable moods. The annointed house of Hohenzollern seems to have been a rough house But if it is a wound to national pride in Germany that its war lord and leader should thus be revealed, the German people can nevertheless argue that a people that could attain a high degree of national power and development with the handicap of such a monarch must have in it certain indestructible elements of greatness

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK

It need not be surprising if some steps should be taken before the week is over tobring the coal strike to an end. Officials of the miners' unions are debarreed by the federal courts from taking any part in any way concerning the suspension. can give no orders. nor can any benefits be paid while the injunction is pending. In the meantime government officials are hopeful that common ground may be found whereon all can stand and discuss the differences with a view of settling the difficulty.

The coal strike naturally will affect millions of people, and if it is continued for any lengthy period will bring distress of the most acute character. The government realizes this situation and will make every endeavor to settle the controversy in a manner acceptable to all. The public, at least, hopes so.

DOOM OF BOLSHEVISM

The doom of Bolshevik rule in Russia seems at last to be actually impending. Long since, the blood-stained ruffians at Moscow saw the hand-writing on the wall and realized that only Red revolution in other lands would avail to save them from their fate. They continued to cling to power in desperation. in the midst of a people that hated them unutterably only because of the fatalistic inertia of the starved and terrorized masses. Latterly they have made feverish but futile overtures of peace to the neighboring peoples that they had earlier ruthlessly attacked, and now they see no hint of pity in the malignant glances of the unhappy beings whom they have tortured with the most cruel social experiment of all history. They know the end that awaits them.

Gen. Pershing has spoken in favor of an army of 300,000 men, as against the recommendation of 500,000 by the war department. General Pershing speaks from practical observations, while the war department backs its argument with theory. Even the smaller number will be a large army for the United States when and about 100,000 men in the regular establishment before the war.

Five hundred American troops landed in Brest last Friday. from where they went to Coblenz, to guard property during a period of transfer. If we take up manufactories there will be several thousand of our troops to cross the seas, in spite of the declaration of President Wilson, that after the league of nations becomes a reality not another man in khaki would cross the ocean.

While many are discouraged over the miners' strike, yet there appears to be an optimistic feeling that before long an adjustment in industrial affairs will take place. One thing is certain, conditions cannot remain as they are, and apparently they cannot get much worse. Any change evidently will be for the better.

We are promised that the treaty will be out of the way by the middle of November, and that will be something for which we can give thanks. Now. if the strikes were only out of the way we could enjoy our Thanksgiving turkey. (if we had one,) with with greater relish.

At Lewistown the county jail has no prisoners and there has been nobody in the lockup for five months. At that Lewistown hasn't got much on Charleroi.

Cold Water as a Purifier.

Fresh cold water is a powerful absorbent of gases, therefore it should be greatly used in a sick room or in one which cannot be frequently ventilated. A bowl of cold water kept in such a room and changed daily is of great assistance in purifying the air.

Among other nineteenth-century false prophets might be mentioned the ex-naval officer, Richard Brothers, who predicted that he would be king of Jerusalem, and Private James White, who founded a religious sect known as the Jezreelites.

STEAMERS MAKE CHANGE IN TOWING TRADE

The steamer Tide, which has been towing gasoline barges from Pittsburg to points down the Ohio for the Old Reliable Towboat company, has been withdrawn from that trade, and will be hereafter engaged in harbor work at Clairton. The steamer M. D. Wayman will take the place of the Tide in towing the gasoline tanks up and down the Ohio. It was found that the gasoline boats at Clairton were unable to do the heavy work required of them, hence the change. The Homestead will take the place of the Wayman in the local trade.

Do You Remember---November 11

that day last year when we all went wild---threw our hats in the air, rang the bells and blew the whistles in sheer delight because the signing of the armistice meant the end of the war?

It was the end of a period of destruction during which we "went without," that production might center on materials for war.

On the anniversary of Armistice Day, November 11, let all Americans pledge themselves to work together and stop waste. Only in this way can we make up the years of lost production and again know peace with plenty.

MONONGAHELA HAS A FIGHT FOR MAYOR

Monongahela City citizens are not only greatly interested but much concerned over the mayoralty election in that town to be held tomorrow. The opposing candidates are Charles Young, who secured the Republican nomination over three opponents at the primariees and W. A. Allen, who was nominated by the Democrats. Serious charges have been made against Young in the Republican, in a paid advertisement, charging him with irregularities while he was a Justice of the Peace in Carroll township. These actions of Young resulted in a charge being made against him in the courts of the county, but which was later marked as nol. pros. In a reply to the advertisemeent Young says he has no reply to make, other than that he is conducting his campaign honorably and squarely and asks the voters to support him.

GLOBE BREWERY PLANT CLOSED DOWN

The Globe brewery plant at Monongahela, owned by the Independent Brewing company, was closed down on Friday last, and in the future no more beer will be manufactured at that plant. It is said to be the intention of the company to board up the buildings and no work will be done except the necessary labor to look after the buildings and machinery to keep them from deteriorating. It is said that eventually the machinery may be dismantled and removed to some other location.

DONORA TEAM SMEARS UNIONTOWN GRIDDERS

The Donora High school football team defeated the Uniontown High at the latter place on Saturday last by a score of 18 to 0. The game was played in the rain, which made brilliant work an impossibility. Uniontown was completely outplayed by the steel town boys.

According to the message sent out by the district attorney only regularly licensed dealers are permitted to sell near beer, from this time on. This will make quite a cut into the business of all soft drink dispenserers who made the near stuff a leading feature in their sales. However near beer is a brew, and the law specifically requires that a license is necessary to dispense it.

THRILL IN SWOOP OF HAWK

Pity for the Victim Cannot Altogether Overcome Admiration for Bird of Prey.

Although the hawk undoubtedly has a right to his dinner, there is frequently little sympathy shown for the bird of prey, but much for the victim that furnishes forth the feast.

It is a thrilling sight to see a fish-hawk, sailing a hundred feet or more above a rapidly flowing stream, suddenly bring his wings nearly together above his back and fall like a plummet to the water below. The action is rapid, the wings are in motion by the time the water is reached, and out of the spray emerges the hawk with a fine fish in his talons, to be borne away to the accompaniment of flashing drops thrown from the struggling fish.

One day on a suburban lawn a mother oriole had coaxed a youngster out of the pendent nest, hung on the extreme end of a branch where no enemy could find entrance. Just as the little one was making the acquaintance of all outdoors, a sharp-eyed hawk saw the newcomer, and in an instant the oriole was taking his first and last flight in the possession of the hawk, while the mother flew alongside pouring out her heart in rage and pain. Thus they passed out of sight.

The strength of the hawk's foot is remarkable. Some years ago a hunter shot a hen hawk of large size, breaking a wing. Down came the hawk and the hunter advanced to secure the chicken thief. The wounded bird made no attempt to run, but faced his foe. When a few feet only separated them he jumped and attempted to fasten his talons in the hunter's foot. A pair of heavy hunting boots were nearly cut through as the sharp claws slipped off the instep. Had the hawk got a fair hold the foot would have been pierced.—Exchange.

HAD ITS ORIGIN IN PERSIA

Word, "Check" Can Be Traced to Term Employed in the Ancient Game of Chess.

The historical adventures of the word "check" give an interesting example of how a common term has gained its present meaning.

It comes originally from Persia, and is associated with the game of chess. A shah is a Persian king, and centuries ago the word shah, or something like it, was used to designate an attack upon the king in chess. Under the influence of the medieval Latinist the word underwent a curious change to "scaccus" and later passed into old French as "eschec" or "eschac." From the French it was but a step through the Norman tongue into English as "check" or "cheque."

After its form was established the meaning of the word began to extend from a formidable move in a game of chess to any stoppage or rebuff of something in progress, and gradually it came to designate anything which controlled or restrained anything else, and so came to mean a token or ticket. In the early days of "drawn notes," or drafts, the counterfoil or stub in the book was called a "check." About the beginning of the nineteenth century the word became synonymous with draft, and some forty years ago was established as the statutory definition for "a bill of exchange, drawn on a banker, payable on demand."

Red Sails.

Violet seas under deep skies and dotted on the horizon from Quiberon to Belle Isle the red sails of the Brittany fishing boats. Along this stretch of the Atlantic coast red sails have been known immemorially. They existed in Caesar's time. In the "Commentaries" occurs the remark that the people of the coast made their sails of tanned skins sewn together. Either they had no flax or did not understand its use, but the more likely reason in Caesar's opinion was that they knew no ordinary sail would stand against the ocean winds, owing to the great weight of their boats. In time the Breton fisherman exchanged his heavy boat for a lighter one and then he hoisted the canvas sail. Different in texture to when Caesar conquered Gaul, the sails of the Finisterre seas are of the same tawny hue. The Breton is the most conservative being in the world. The color of the sails of his forefathers must be the color of his sails, and of those of his son. On this point nobody will be found to disagree with him.

There are rivers in India which are subject to sudden and heavy floods, and over these it is necessary to maintain a ferryboat service. In some cases the method of conveying a person across the river has remained the same for several centuries, as in the following case. A cord having been fastened to a large, elongated gourd, and a smaller gourd being also tied to it, the native gets astride, and, laying his breast upon the larger gourd, paddles himself across with his hands and feet. Women, too, avail themselves of this singular contrivance, under the escort of a ferryman, who, similarly mounted, takes his charge in tow, carries her basket, with perhaps a child in it, on his head, and conveys them safely across.

The Way It Looked to Benham.

Mrs. Benham—The paper tells of a man who went crazy on his wedding day.

Benham—He must have been crazy before that; otherwise he wouldn't have had any wedding day.
